The Mackintosh

A Distinctive Victorian Home with Arts and Crafts Character.

The Mackintosh is a distinctive four-bedroom Victorian-style home, characterised by its double gables, decorative bargeboards, and a charming entrance canopy. These architectural features lend the home a unique and picturesque appearance. Inside, the residence offers well-appointed rooms with high ceilings and detailed woodwork, reflecting the craftsmanship of the era. Large windows provide abundant natural light, creating a warm and inviting living space.

Charles Rennie Mackintosh

A Pioneer of British Modernism

Named after Charles Rennie Mackintosh (1868–1928), a renowned Scottish architect and designer heavily influenced by the Arts and Crafts Movement. Mackintosh's work is celebrated for its innovative use of form and decoration, blending traditional Scottish elements with modernist influences.
